Portable SterJo Mail Passwords With Key

Portable SterJo Mail Passwords allows you to easily retrieve the username and passwords that were saved in the browser. The program can retrieve these login details for any email service (e.g. Gmail, Yahoo, Hotmail and many others), regardless of the platform or browser you use. Find the lost passwords Modern browsers feature the option to remember the username and password for any account that you log in to on the Internet. This way, you do not need to remember your password since the browser can automatically fill in the designated fields. Even if you delete the browser's cookies or clear the cache, the saved passwords are still stored in local files and so they can be restored. Portable SterJo Mail Passwords can help you in this task if you need to recover credentials for email accounts. The program can recognize several email services, including Gmail, Yahoo, Hotmail, AOL, GMX, Zoho and others. Support for several browsers The advantage of Portable SterJo Mail Passwords is that it can recover the passwords saved in several browsers installed on your PC. The program supports recovering data from Chrome, Firefox, Internet Explorer and Opera. Obtaining the passwords is very simple, all you need to do is click the 'Show Mail Passwords' option in the program's interface. The information is displayed in the dedicated table: the browser, email service, username and password. You can copy each of these elements to the clipboard individually or export the entire row. Security issues on shared computers Portable SterJo Mail Passwords is particularly useful if you do not share your computer with other users. Otherwise, you can discover their email passwords and they can view yours, regardless if they use a different browser. To avoid such situations, it is recommended that they do not save their passwords in any browser on your PC. Download browser password manager for Chrome, Firefox and Opera now! The trial version allows you to perform only one operation. You can register a new account, backup your accounts and restore them. If you want to use the program for free, you can download a 60-days license that includes all of the functional features. Portable SterJo Mail Passwords Review The Show Password feature works similarly to the Passwords Manager in Chrome and Firefox. It's basically an add-on that displays all of your saved email passwords in a clickable table. There are two similar add-ons: Password Pass, created by TeamViewer Software and T

What's New In?

Stripped Bar Code Reader 3.0 is a simple yet very useful application that can extract bar codes from any image document. The program supports several types of bar codes, including the ones used in the UPC, Code 39 and DataMatrix formats. Extract and convert bar codes Stripped Bar Code Reader 3.0 can recognize several different bar codes in various image formats. The program can easily scan images using the built-in bar code scanner or import them via drag and drop. The images that the program identifies will be opened in the preview window and the bar code will be highlighted. You can modify the bar code detected in the preview window, editing its color or size. This option makes it possible to change the text size or color of the bar code in order to match it more closely to the document image. The program also supports the conversion between several different formats of bar code images. Windows 7 compatibility The program has support for Windows 7, but some of its features may be not fully functional in that version. Accessibility Stripped Bar Code Reader 3.0 can recognize the bar codes scanned by the built-in bar code scanner from any location, regardless of screen size and device resolution. The preview bar code is placed on a transparent background so it will be visible on the screen regardless of the settings selected in the 'Image Quality' dialog. The program also includes a built-in magnifier for people with visual impairments. Useful features The 'Fit to Screen' option allows you to adjust the size of the bar code area to fit the current screen resolution, as well as to restore the previous value. The 'Autosave' setting controls the behavior of the bar code scanner. In the 'Automatically Zoom to Barcode' mode, the program will automatically zoom to the detected bar code, making it possible to see the entire bar code. If the user enables the 'Automatically Zoom to Barcode' option and then opens the image, the program will zoom to the exact area of the bar code. This option has an impact on the way the program works and may cause the loss of data when the image is edited. Another useful feature is the ability to customize the look of the application using the 'Styles' tab. It is possible to change the color, font, size and shape of the labels, bars, or shadows. The 'Styles' section also includes
