

A: Simple solution, but it will work! Go to the site linked in the OP, copy the captcha image, paste it to a new image file, and send it to you! This will also serve to save the image in the browser for you, which serves as your reminder of it. You can either just download that image file back into a browser, or even save it to your computer as a proper image file that way (ImageMagick is recommended for this).

HARRISBURG -- Governor Tom Wolf offered his support to organizers of a car caravan seeking to have Pennsylvania renamed the 'Liberty State' in a Wednesday night letter. Citing the "heart-wrenching legacy of slavery and continued racial discrimination" in the Keystone State, Governor Wolf said he stood in support of the movement. "I am committed to ensuring our Commonwealth meets our constitutional and moral responsibilities. I have joined our partners on the Liberty Lives Campaign and will do everything in my power to see that they have a say in the decision about whether Pennsylvania's official name will change." Governor Wolf's letter comes days after the governor's chief of staff Bryan "Cox" Williams sent out a letter to friends and allies, saying he wouldn't support a push to change the state's name. The Liberty Lives campaign launched a petition drive to get a law introduced in the Pennsylvania House and Senate that would change the state's name to the Liberty State. No legal challenge has been filed, but at least nine members of the General Assembly, including House Speaker Mike Turzai, are supporting it. Reached by phone Wednesday night, a spokesman for the Governor declined to comment on the governor's letter. The Washington Post first reported on the letter Wednesday. The Pennsylvania Secretary of State's Office posted about the petition on its website, saying the effort "fails to show that there is a widespread demand to change the state's name, and therefore the petition is insufficient." A spokeswoman for Secretary of State Fetterman said the office is committed to implementing electoral laws and advancing the commonwealth's status as a respected democracy. "The proposal to rename Pennsylvania is an example of removing the name of the state from its historical legacy of institutionalized racism, a historical reality which continues to affect the lives and opportunities of certain members of the community today," she said. Richard Langer, a Penn State University professor of history, said he supported
